

Leading with Impact

Get ready and stay ready

Increased competition, the cost of turnover, the speed of change, and employees' higher-than-ever expectations for professional and personal growth—in today's business environment, managers and leaders need to be more skilled than ever before. They're required to support employees to acquire new understanding, new ways of thinking, and new skills, and they need to be able to lead those employees into the future with clarity and wisdom.

Experiencing the workshop

The Leading with Impact (LWI) program is an interactive, practice-oriented training focused on developing core skills and a mindset for managing and leading others well.

What skills will I learn and develop?

- Developing the leadership attributes that make you fully "followable"
- Managing your "self-talk" (the internal voice in your head) so your mindset fully supports your success
- Understanding and adapting to different work styles—to produce better results and relationships
- Being able to understand and navigate the web of politics, power, and influence in any organization
- Listening—to get critical information and develop more productive and trusting relationships
- Defining goals and responsibilities—so that they're mutually understood, specific, and doable
- Providing clear, balanced feedback—to help empower, motivate, and develop your employees
- Building high-performance teams that work together seamlessly to get great results
- Creating a personal vision and strategy for your own development as a leader

Lead with Impact

- Create strong, motivated teams
- Build loyalty and commitment
- Develop others' potential
- Clarify your own personalized leadership path
